

AMERICAN AVIATORS TRAIN IN ITALY

SOME ARE BECOMING PERFECT AS SUBMARINE HUNTERS.

American Airplane Training Camp, Central Italy, April 15.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Americans in training here to become submarine hunters and coast protectors combine hard work and serious study, varied by occasional trips to a nearby town or, less frequently, to Rome.

This is the first school in Italy for Uncle Sam's aerial sailors. They attend lectures, learn French and Italian, go through all the lessons up to "solo" flyers, when they are allowed to fly alone, thence on through careful training to the time when they are recommended as fit for officers. Next their names travel over the Atlantic to the war department, and finally they become officers, and have their names enrolled among the fighters for the United States.

"I know of no greater glory than that of being an aviator," said the American ambassador, Thomas Nelson Page, to some of them at a lunch given in their honor.

Their camp is located near the banks of one of the volcanic lakes in the mountains north of Rome. The winter and spring have been mild and the student aviators have been flying almost every day since they came, under the direction of Italian instructor pilots. They utilize the lake for bathing.

On their Saturday afternoon and Sunday holidays they ride over the the cathedral town set on a big rock and they go to church, see the sights, spend a little money on restaurant food, possibly put up over night at one of the many little hotels that are languishing here since the war cut off tourist traffic, and they ride back again Monday morning for a new week's training.

Those fortunate enough to have toothache or teeth in the need of repair may go to Rome for that purpose. Uncle Sam not having yet provided a dentist exclusively for this camp as he has to the bigger camp for aviators in the south of Italy. As teeth connect with the nerves which are supposed to regulate the sense of equilibrium, it will be understood just how important commanding officers consider such troubles. Without a proper sense of equilibrium a man can't fly without running the risk of breaking his neck or a valuable machine.

Sometimes money becomes a drawback to the Rome excursion, in view of the irregularities of pay days. One sharp youth from Missouri overcame this handicap by borrowing French, English or American money from his comrades. In Rome he exchanged this for Italian paper money at the rate of eight and one-half lire to the dollar, spent what was necessary to see the sights and returned to the camp with more money than he had when he started. He repaid his debts at the rate of five lire to the dollar.
